JORDAN GRABELLE

Jordan received this award after completing the 6th grade at Voorhees Middle School in Voorhees, NJ. Jordan’s story involves helping young children with limited resources learn to read. She realized that literacy removes barriers to success, so she started an organization called “Love Letters for Literacy,” which creates and donates a series of games that provide a fun way for young children to learn to read. She went so far as to consult with professors at the University of Pennsylvania for educational advice, and she recruits volunteers to create drawings for the alphabet cards that are part of her game.
