Advocates for More Accessible Sex Education

KC is the founder of the Keystone Coalition for Advancing Sex Education, an organization that advocates for better sex education in Pennsylvania. His extensive work has included exploring current thinking and best practices; researching recent Pennsylvania history and legislation on sex education standards; presenting his work to Westtown school board members, alumni, and the upper school student body; and visiting ninth grade classes to explain the social justice aspect of ensuring that all young people have the resources and knowledge they need. KC is a passionate political activist overall and will serve as his senior class president. His natural ability to lead is why he is able to address such a mature and challenging subject.
