Jayden was a carefree 9-year-old when Hurricane Maria slammed into Puerto Rico in 2017. When he saw that so many people lost everything, he decided to do whatever he could to help. First, he saved money from his allowance, and with some added help from his parents, shipped $850 of food and supplies to the hurricane victims. Next, he decided to hold a toy drive so that children in Puerto Rico would have presents for Christmas. He started by donating his own gifts, and by the time he was done he had collected over eleven hundred toys! Jayden later traveled to Puerto Rico with his parents to personally deliver toys to children in orphanages and distribute funds to assist in the rebuilding efforts. Visiting the island nation made Jayden even more sensitive to those in need, and he continued to raise money and create projects to help the people of Puerto Rico after he returned.
