Gives new life to something that is thrown away

• Was greatly dismayed by the fact that beautiful floral arrangements made for weddings, parties, and funerals were thrown away as soon as the event was over

• Started her own non-profit, “Recycled Roses,” where she works with event coordinators, funeral homes, and party planners to allow her to pick up leftover floral arrangements

• Redesigns the flowers into smaller bouquets and brings them to local nursing homes

• Invests her own time and money to purchase vases and often recycles them for future use
