Dear Friends of the NLM,

The National Liberty Museum will be temporarily closed to visitors until further notice to support efforts to contain the spread of COVID-19. All NLM programs and events are canceled until further notice, as well.

While there have been no confirmed cases connected to the Museum, we prioritize our staff and visitors’ health and safety and believe the best course of action is to heed the CDC’s call to minimize opportunities for large numbers of the public to gather. Of course, the situation remains fluid, and we will be monitoring developments carefully. We hope to be able to announce the reopening of the Museum to visitors very soon.

Please continue to look for updates on this closure and other information on this website.

Thank you and please stay safe.
